SOMEBODY DINES TO-MORROW.

YALE WILL BACK HER PUNT
CATCHERS AGAINST TIGERS'In Other Words, They Will Take a Chance and Make a
Kicking Game Out of It.

Yale challenges Princeton to a kicking duel in the opening of the great game to-morrow, as some of the coaches advise. It will be the most spectacular contest that the gridiron has ever seen.

This suggestion shows that Yale is daring if nothing else. They figure that Coy can gain steadily on Harlan or McCormick in booting the ball, and in this way keep it continually in the Tiger territory until they can get a line on the Princeton plan of attack. But they have not reckoned fully. The Yale coaches know that, under the new rules regarding the outside kick, it is a gamble any time a ball is sent sailing aloft. The outside kick rules give any player the privilege of taking the ball at any time after it has struck the ground. Therefore Yale is willing to back her punt catchers against those of Princeton. In other words, they show a "nervy" willingness to kick the ball and let the best team win on luck or otherwise.

Tigers May Attack.

Princeton may not accept the challenge and begin an attack the minute the ball gets in their possession. But the ball will be in the Tiger territory after the Yale kick and the defenders of the Blue are anxious to see the Tiger make the attempt. If Princeton refuses the challenge then the Blue is ready with several formations of attack with which they expect to win. At New Haven they are so confident of winning that the only thing they will allow the Tiger in their preliminary estimates of the score is a drop kick from the field. The Yale coaches figure that their team ought to make at least three touchdowns. Notwithstanding this kind of teasing they are trying to make a team to be over-confident. That is a system pretty hard to figure.

In her plan of attack Yale will depend largely upon the formidable knife play devised by Walter Camp. The men form in the shape of an acute triangle with Yale tried such a heavy man in this play for the ball carrier. With his weight as a start they expect to cut wide spaces through the Tiger flanks, and on one plunge gained forty yards.

Yale will also spring an innovation by using the men at different places on both the offensive and defensive. They will be used at end whenever the forward pass is attempted in all little dependence in the forward pass, but will rely more on her plunging formations. On the defensive they have a new scheme of playing centre three feet back so that he can hurl himself at attacks on the line. With this additional three feet of momentum he has been able to stop every plunge made at or near the centre of the Blue line so far this season.

SIX-DAY RIDERS CUT AND BRUISED

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 15.—When the bicycle racers who are taking part in the six-day team race at Park Square Garden lined up at the tape this afternoon for the start of the fifth day's riding, most of them looked tired and had badly scratched and bruised faces, the result of frequent falls.

During the first hour twenty miles were reeled off at a steady pace. The score of the six leading teams at 2 P. M. was 788 miles. Sherwood and Limburg and Galvin and Holbrook were a lap behind, and Wyatt and Connolly two laps behind the leaders. Blizzardi and Hill brought up the rear with 777 miles and six laps.

EDGREN'S COLUMN
SKY MAY PICK
WINNER OF BIG
GRIDIRON GAME

W HOLL win the big game?
Search me!
On this season's past performances it looks like a pipe for Princeton.

But against the showing that Princeton has made in the smaller games of the season we have to consider the fact that Yale is ALWAYS at her best when the time comes to face the Tigers. Yale ALWAYS pulls together at the last moment for that game. One ambition fills the heart of every Yale football player, and that is to be on a winning team against Princeton, sturdiest of all her hereditary rivals.

And Princeton isn't lacking in the same kind of spirit. Many a tough Yale game has been pulled out of the rut at the last moment by some daring Princeton play, the play of some individual star. Princeton always has a Poe or a De Witt or a Harlan.

But Yale's—I think I'll cut this short. When I began I had a notion of picking the Tigers to win, and if I keep on arguing I may hesitate. He who hesitates is lost.

In dopping these Yale-Princeton games the best scheme seems to be this: Watch the sunset on the night before the game—notice whether the sky is Blue or is tinged with Orange—and bet accordingly.

BUT CROWLEY, of Hartford, who promoted the great fight between Terry McGovern and "Young Corbett" in that town, is connected with a boxing club in New Haven. A few days ago Mr. Crowley sent a letter to Johnny Mack, Matty Baldwin's manager, asking for an interview on the subject of matching Baldwin and Murphy to box ten or twelve rounds.

Mr. Crowley followed his letter, skimming through New York without connecting with Baldwin's manager, went back to New Haven. Still at large in the Baldwin camp. Apparently in his overwhelming anxiety to fight Murphy (see statements) Matty lost the power of speech and couldn't answer Mr. Crowley's appeal.

In the meantime Johnny Oliver, who guides the bark of Murphy's fortunes, met Mr. Crowley and offered to let Tommy box Matty at catchweights. Oliver explains that the doctor thinks every time Murphy tries to train down he'll bring on a fever.

The Murphy-Baldwin fight is as far away as ever.

MIT OLIVER'S definition of a "sport" is original. "I'm as good a sport as any one," explains Oliver. "I'm out for money. Wherever I can see money for Murphy I'll go out and get it. There isn't nothing in this fighting for love. If any one shows me where Tommy can make enough out of a fight, we'll go out and get it."

A GENTLEMAN writes that a man in his employ—an Englishman—claims to be a great runner. In fact, the Englishman claims that he has run a mile in four minutes flat. Guess he must be a runner if he can do that.

The fastest mile ever run by a professional was by W. G. George, at Little Bridge, England, Aug. 23, 1886—a mile in four minutes, twenty and four-fifths seconds. No one has approached that time since. The amateur world's record is held by Thomas Connell, made in 1885—a mile in four minutes fifteen and one-half seconds.

That Englishman must have timed himself by the town clock—and it ran down.

good preliminary bouts to precede the heavy-weight championship battle between Tommy Burns and "Gunner" Moir on Dec. 2. He has secured Jim Driscoll, the English feather-weight champion, to meet Billy Griffin, of Australia, in the semi-wind-up, and Joey Bowker, the English bantam-weight champion, to meet Jockey Cohen. Both bouts are limited to ten rounds.

Stanton is Sick; Has Called Off Bouts.

Walter Stanton, the clever California middleweight, is laid up with a heavy cold, and his manager, Billy Jacobs, has called off his bouts with Bill Papke, scheduled for Monday night, before the Cooper A. C., of Boston, and his six-round go with P. O'Keefe, the Irish champion, at the Sharkey A. C. a week from Wednesday night. Stanton took a chill after his bout with Johnny Carroll on Tuesday night, and his physician has ordered him not to box for three weeks.

Fitzgerald Fights Chambers To-night.

Willie Fitzgerald, who has been practically matched to meet George Meach in a limited round bout before the Pacific A. C., of Los Angeles, Cal., next month, will meet Eddie Chambers for six rounds before the Industrial A. C., of Philadelphia, to-night.

Peter Sullivan to Box Unholtz.

Peter Sullivan, the welter-weight fighter of Fall River, Mass., who has won some good fights in the West, is for this year.

EAST VS. WEST

RACING HAS ENJOYED ITS
MOST SUCCESSFUL SEASON

Biggest Ever Known to Sport
—Coney Island J. C. Increases Stakes.

BY VINCENT TREANOR.

TO-MORROW at Bunnings the last of the Eastern racing season begins. It will last thirteen days. After that, those who have the time and money will go either to New Orleans or the coast tracks, while the rest of the regulars will put in a dull winter around New York trying handbooks.

This season has broken all records. James R. Keene, with 400.61 in purse winnings, has eclipsed all previous successes of any one stable in the history of the turf. The racing associations have made more money than ever before, and the annual tax that goes to the Agricultural Department of the Empire State will be thousands greater than last year.

One unmistakable sign in the increased popularity of the thoroughbred sport is the announcement by the Coney Island Jockey Club of added values for next season's classics. The betting end of the game is all that suffered this season, and this was due to dull times in Wall street. Many punters have been sent to the poor house by stock market reverses. All told, however, the sport has never seen a bigger year than this.

Among the horses themselves, Colin by his dozen straight victories and his $100,000 winnings, stands out above all. Of the older horses perhaps Peter Pan, who was forced into early retirement, was the best, but Ballot proved a worthy successor to him. Charles Edwards, Neelon, Superman, Running Water and Dandelion contributed to the history of the year. Miller was the most successful jockey.

It was McCafferty vs. Durnell in the Sewall Ormandy race, and McCafferty won out.

Jack Joyner's horses are coming through these days. Better late than never.

Don't take that effort of Miss Sain seriously. She is a ton better than that.

Many went to Coney Island simply because Miller had the mount, and they hoped to see the bookies were real generous in the Welbourne race. Nice price, 5 to 1.

Noted added two to his winning mounts—Rialto and Welbourne.

Jimmy Lane must have gone back a lot.

to be beaten by a horse like Alamogordo, and with only 135 pounds on his back.

What measured up a fortune in these days of stringency in the money market was dumped into the ring on Number One.

Olefin ran a funny race. He looked beaten at the start, but came again and ran over everything at the end.

The odds on horses, James B. Brady and Sewell, finished second.
